

*He was a man - to fit the Lord -
Sturdy and stark his hand
Steady as the rock beneath the soil . . .
His body strong to welcome honest toil.
And - like the land . . . he wore exceedingly well . .
Mellowing with the years, til we could tell -
He moved in harmony with God's earth ---
Accepting death the natural end of birth.
While Calvin lived - he played well the game -
Leaving the Land better . . . than when he came.*
