

Part of loving someone is being unselfish and sharing them with others. Our time has come to do that with our mother & grandmother, although we wish we could have kept her here a little longer. God has called her home for a family reunion. We can only imagine the good time she's having up there.

Momma,

Thank you for so many things; most of all teaching us about Jesus and what a real walk with God is. How to hit our knees and pray until Heaven comes down, how to stand in the gap, how to pray in the spirit, how to stand on faith, how to be a servant to others. These are the things that no amount of money can buy. They must be taught by example and you did that. You deposited much wisdom, much love and much understanding in all of your children. We are forever grateful to you for all you have done, but most of all for leading us to Christ and holding our hand along the way. We love you momma.

Give everyone that has gone to Heaven before us kisses and tell Jesus we love Him and thank Him for giving you to us and for all the wonderful blessings. He's sent into our lives. We will all see you soon.
